Traffic Safety GA knows the feeling. Driving is a huge responsibility and requires focus and skills. We want you to be safe on the roads. Our specialty is road and traffic safety. Our customers are our number one priority. If you're wondering how to pass the Georgia driver's test, rather young or older age, we can help. Continue reading for tips on how to pass the Georgia Driving Test. Check off all the important points before operating the vehicle. Adjust your mirrors, your seat position, steering wheel position, and of course fasten your seatbelt before leaving the parking lot. This will indicate to your administrator you are skilled enough to drive a vehicle. They will also need for you to know where your emergency flashers are, parking brake, windshield wipers and other necessary points in your vehicle that are essential to driving. Make sure you use your directional signals! Keep your hands on the wheel! Keep your hands on the wheel at all times when you are operating the vehicle. Your goal should be for the administrator to feel safe while you take the driving test. Keeping your hands on the wheel is a good habit when driving even after you're licensed. The proper hand position is at ten and two when holding the steering wheel. If you drive one-handed at the twelve o'clock position you will fail your test. Stop at stop signs and properly change lanes. Be sure to stop completely at every stop sign or lighted stop sign. Don't stop quickly or roll through the stop sign, neither of these are good driving habits. Take your time and make sure you stop completely, especially behind that big white line in front of you. If you don't stop completely at a stop sign, you'll definitely lose points on your test. You can also get a ticket if you do this as a licensed driver and that ticket can come with some heavy fines and potential points on your license and a warning to your insurance company. When changing lanes, make sure you turn your signal on, look in your side view mirror, over your shoulder, and if it is safe then you can start moving over into the lane. Once you're in the lane you can turn your signal off. Practice parallel parking. This is a very important part of your driving test. Most beginners fail this part of their driver's test. Ensure you are prepared for this segment by locking down the steps before taking the test. Be sure to avoid hitting the traffic cones and check both mirrors when backing up to pass the test. Should you run over traffic cones while parallel parking or during your driving test you will lose points. Practice using traffic cones at home if possible when learning to parallel park. Being attentive and showing you're paying attention will go a long way when taking your driver's test. Drive the speed limit and practice as much as possible before taking the test. The first step to independence is getting a learner's permit. The final step is getting that coveted driver's license. In order to do so, Georgia drivers must pass a road skills test. This can be a bit nerve-racking, but preparation is key. So, what skills must new drivers master in order to pass the Georgia driving test? All road skills tests are administered at the Georgia Dept. of Driver Services or an authorized third party center, like Drive Smart Georgia. Our customers that take a 30-hour Drivers Ed class and at least 6 hours on in-car driving lessons can take an on-site road test at our Johns Creek or Alpharetta location. Plus, you can take your test in the same car you practiced in with one of our caring instructors. Regardless if you take your road skills test with us or at the DDS, below are the following skills that you will be graded on during the road test. Parallel parking During the test, you will be required to park midway between two cones so that your automobile is not more than 18" from the curb. Quick stops You will be asked to drive at a speed of 20 miles per hour and make a quick, safe stop when the examiner says to do so. Turnabout You will be asked to turn your car in a narrow space using two-, three- or five-point turns. Reverse backing You must back your car for a distance of about 50 feet, at a slow rate of speed, and as straight and smoothly as possible. Be sure to turn your head and look back at all times while backing up. Stopping for signs and traffic signals During the road skills test, you'll drive on actual streets. The examiner will look to make sure you give the proper turn signal. Make sure that you approach intersections in the proper lane, stop before reaching a pedestrian crosswalk, and remain stopped until you can move safely through. Approaching corners Remember to be in the proper lane and always look in both directions before proceeding. Yielding right-of-way Always yield right-of-way to pedestrians, motor vehicles, bicyclists or anyone else who moves into the intersection before you. Turning Get into the proper lane and be sure to signal your turn an adequate distance before reaching the turn. Passing Always look ahead and behind to make sure you can safely pass without interfering with other traffic. Following other cars Do not drive too closely behind other cars on the road. Watch the car ahead of you. When it passes some reference point, such as a telephone pole, count "one-thousand-one, one-thousand-two." If you pass the same spot before you are through counting, you are following too closely. Posture Keep both hands on the steering wheel. Do not rest your elbow on the window and do not attempt to carry on a conversation with the examiner because he will be busy giving instructions and recording your score. After your road skills test, the examiner will go over your score sheet. In order to pass, you must achieve a score of 75% or higher. So - practice, practice, practice before your test. Stay calm and show confidence in your driving skills. If you've done your homework and have honed your skills, a Georgia driver's license is on the horizon.
